DETAILED ACTIONInformation Disclosure Statement

The information disclosure statements filed 12/04/01 and 5/6/02 fails to comply with 37 CFR 1.98(a)(3) because it does not include a concise explanation of the relevance, as it is presently understood by the individual designated in 37 CFR 1.56(c) most knowledgeable about the content of the information, of each patent listed that is not in the English language. It has been placed in the application file, but the information referred to therein has not been considered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Art Unit: 3761

Claims 1, 2, 7, 11, 14 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over U.S. Patent No. 5,181,905 ("Flam").

As regards claims 1 and 2, Flam discloses an adhesive bandage for monitoring the condition of a wound. As can be seen from fig. 5, the bandage (31) comprises a backing film (34), an adhesive layer (32) and a dressing in the form of a layer of polymeric foam (33). Flam also discloses tape (11), which is adhered to the top surface of backing (34). The tape as shown in fig. 1, discloses markings in the form of text, which indicate care instructions for a wound (col. 4, lines 56-62).

As regards the backing being flexible, it is inherent in the disclosure that the backing is flexible given the environment in which the bandage is used. Assuming arguendo that the applicant contends that the backing is not flexible, the examiner contends that one having ordinary skill in the art would have found it obvious to provide the bandage of Flam with a flexible backing in order to contour the skin of the user.

As regards claim 7, the tape includes boxes made of lines, which is capable of receiving additional text or other wound care indicia.

As regards claim 11, as can be read from col. 3, lines 22-68, the boxes change colors when a certain temperature is reached. By monitoring the temperature of a wound (i.e., the color of the boxes, the health care professional is able to administer appropriate treatment, (col. 4, lines 54-62).

As regards claim 14, the tape can be considered an adhesive label.

Art Unit: 3761

As regards claim 15, it can be seen from Fig. 5 that the adhesive covers the adhesive covers substantially the entire adhesive-faced side of the backing film.

Claims 3-6, 8-10 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Flam.

As regards claims 3-6, 8-10 and 13, Flam fails to teach the markings indicate the day the bandage was applied, the day the bandage should be changed, proscriptive care instructions, where additional text or indicia should be added to the bandage, that the care instructions reference a wound protocol, that the color is associated with a particular day of the week and wherein the adhesive bandage was applied on that day of the week and that the color is associated with a particular day of the week and wherein the adhesive bandage should be changed on that day of the week.

Flam has already established that certain color markings represent a certain temperature range, which translates to administering a certain treatment. The examiner contends that it then follows that one having ordinary skill in the art would find it an obvious design choice to modify the tape of Flam to include indicia of any kind including text, markings, colors, etc., which represents or indicates various activities, days, protocols, etc.

Art Unit: 3761

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 16-21 are allowed.

Conclusion

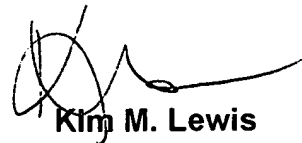

The prior art made of record and not relied upon shows the state of the art.
